3 May 2018

As Buloke Shire Council moves closer to delivering its own library service from 1 July 2018, a new look library schedule has been finalised. The release of the schedule comes on the back of the announcement last week of Adele Allcock as Library Officer and Mary Bisouth as Early Years Library Officer.

Council also continues to work closely with the Buloke Library Advisory Committee, which was formed last year, to identify and address local matters and potential stumbling blocks likely to arise as a result of a direct library service. The committee will continue to work together after the launch of the service to ensure the transition provides an excellent service to our library users.

Council is very pleased to announce its weekly Buloke Library Schedule active from 1 July 2018 as follows:

“Council has all the pieces in place to be ready to not only deliver our new look library service from 1 July but to ensure that the service is just what our library users need. There has been an enormous amount of work undertaken by staff and the committee to get to this point and that work will continue to develop the library service into the future”, said Mayor Cr David Pollard.
